

Matthew Tesch, Co-Founder of HEBI Robotics, discusses trajectories for robot motion, and why thinking about how you get to your goal is important. He will discuss the importance of providing smooth control input to a robotic system, and the basic theory and reasoning behind this idea. This is demonstrated with experiments with a physical robotic actuator.